12 MINERS REPORTED KILLED IN GAS BLAST

WRECKS COAL MINE NEAR FAIRMONT, W. VA.

7 MEN EMERGE FROM SHAFT AFTER EXPLOSION, 11 OTHERS TRAPPED

WITHIN HALF HOUR AFTER ACCIDENT, RESCUE CREWS ENTER SHAFT

Arnettsville, W. Va., March 26.—(U.P.)—A gas explosion deep in the workings of the Yukon mine of the Crown Coal Company here, brought death to 12 miners today.

Seven other workmen of the 19 in the mine at the time of the blast, walked out unharmed.

Rescue workers reported there was no fire in the workings and that the force of the blast had been limited to a small area. Eight bodies have been brought to the surface.

Rescuers had considerable difficulty in bringing the bodies to the surface. Survivors of the blast said it was a local gas explosion, one and one-quarter miles beyond the entrance.

Fairmont, W. Va., March 26.—(U.P.)—Eleven miners were reported killed when a gas blast wrecked the interior of the Corwin Coal Company mine at Arnettsville, near here, early today.

Seven men emerged from the shaft unharmed shortly after the blast but 11 others were reported trapped and probably dead.

The miners were members of the night shift. Those escaping expressed the belief their companions had been killed outright or possibly were trapped behind fallen walls.

Within a half hour after the explosion, rescue crews donned gas masks and entered the torn shaft. Mine rescue equipment was summoned from Pittsburgh and Charleston.

The miners unaccounted for are: J. H. Livingston, D. H. Pastell, Charles Jacobs, Sisto Siano, Andrew Smith, negro, Frank Maricus, Henry Willis, negro, Adma Culp, negro, William Thompson, Edward Drowes, L. H. Harvey.

Pittsburgh, March 26.—Two miners were killed, two escaped and nine others were trapped when an explosion rocked the Yukon mine of the Crown Coal Company at Arnettsville, midway between Morgantown and Fairmont, according to a report of the United States bureau of mines at Pittsburgh.

Fairmont, W. Va., March 26.—(U.P.)—Two miners were killed and nine others are believed dead as the result of an explosion at the Yukon mine of the Crown Coal Company at Arnettsville today.

Seven other miners, escaping from the shaft immediately after the blast, said they were certain that those who were trapped in the mine had been killed.

Discovery of two bodies, burned beyond recognition, led rescue workers to believe there was no chance of the trapped miners surviving.

Survivors of the blast said it was a local gas explosion, confined to a slope about one and one-quarter miles beyond the entrance to the mine. Rescue workers reported there was no fire and the damage caused by the explosion was confined to a limited area.

Rescue squads from Morgantown, Charleston, Fairmont and Pittsburgh were at the mine.

A crew of the night shift had left shortly before the blast occurred.

The Crown Coal Company is a subsidiary of the Imperial Coal Corporation of Johnstown, Pa. It produced 1,200 tons of coal daily, officials said.

The Yukon explosion occurred one and one-half miles from the Everettsville mine of the New England Coal Company, where four years ago 102 miners lost their lives. The Everettsville mine is located in the same "canyon" as the Yukon mine.

Fairmont, W. Va., March 26.—A gas explosion at the Yukon mine of the Crown Coal Co., at Arnettsville today took a toll of at least six dead, with five other miners trapped in the mine, thought to be dead.

Six bodies had been located several hours after the blast and no hope was held for those still in the mine.

Two miners escaped after the explosion. A crew of night shift men had reported off duty shortly before the explosion occurred.

None of the bodies had been removed from the mine. All of the men were working in the same section when the explosion occurred, which led officials to believe those still entombed were dead.

Deadwood, S. D., March 26.—John Varis, 20, was killed today while at work in the Homestead mine when he was crushed by a block of ore which was dislodged from the ceiling of one of the shafts.

Washington, March 26.—(U.P.)—President Hoover today signed the first deficiency bill carrying $169,500,000 for the government establishments. The largest item in the bill is $100,000,000 for the federal farm board. The money is to be made available for immediate use.

WILL OSBORN IN SUIT AGAINST RUDY VALLEE

New York, March 26.—(U.P.)—When Rudy Vallee whispers he's "Longing for the Carolinas," it's just a rank imitation, Will Osborn says, and he wants something done about it.

For Will alleges in a $500,000 damage suit that he was making this crooning business a paying profession way back in 1924 when Rudy was just a college boy.

On the other hand Vallee charges that Will is the copyist.

Osborn has filed an injunction suit seeking to restrain further sale of Rudy's life story. He alleged the book was libelous, scurrilous and held him up to ridicule.

AGED INDIAN TELLS HOW SHE KILLED WOMAN

BEAT MRS. CLOTHILDE MARCHAND OF BUFFALO TO DEATH WITH HAMMER

STORY FALLS ON A STARTLED COURT ROOM FROM LIPS OF INTERPRETER

Court House, Buffalo, N. Y., March 26.—(U.P.)—The aged Nancy Bowen told in her native Seneca tongue today of how she beat Mrs. Clothilde Marchand to death with a hammer while strange noises came out of the radio — the "white witch's" machine which the Indian woman had never seen before.

Her story fell on a startled court room from the lips of an interpreter, who had been sworn in to help Mrs. Bowen testify in the trial of Lila J. Jemerson, another Indian, on a charge of being an accomplice in the killing.

By her stumbling confession the aged woman added another strange phase to this trial that already is one of the strangest in Buffalo court history. She confessed to a crime before going on trial and chose the witness stand as the place to reveal the details of her act. Mrs. Bowen is to be tried on a charge of murder after Miss Jemerson's case is concluded.

Mrs. Bowen's account of the killing was as follows:

She and Lila went to the Marchand home on March 7 with a hammer, a bottle of chloroform and some "magic earth." Lila, who had posed for Henri Marchand, an artist and husband of the dead woman, led Mrs. Bowen to believe that Mrs. Marchand was a witch who must be killed by March 9 or the entire Bowen family would die.

Lila waited outside the home and Mrs. Bowen entered. Mrs. Marchand turned on the radio, and the squaw asked her if she was a witch. Mrs. Marchand laughingly said she was.

The Indian woman leaped on her, brandishing the hammer. She struck her twice, and Mrs. Marchand fell toward the stairway, knocking over the radio. The white woman screamed and tried to grab the hammer, and then sank back unconscious.

Mrs. Bowen took out the chloroform bottle, doused some of the contents on a wad of paper and thrust the paper down Mrs. Marchand's throat. Still fearful lest "the witch" would live, Mrs. Bowen poured some chloroform out of the bottle into Mrs. Marchand's mouth.

Then she washed the blood from her hands and met Lila outside the house. They started for the Seneca reservation, 35 miles from Buffalo.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Bowen's account of the murder, court recessed for luncheon.

Amazed Midwest Digs Itself Out of Heavy Wilderness of Snow Left By Freak of Nature

WORST MARCH BLIZZARD IN AREA HISTORY

PRAIRIES OF 4 STATES MANTLED IN PLACES WITH A FOOT OF SNOW

6 FEET OR MORE IN DEPTH WHERE GALE PILED IT IN DRIFTS

Chicago, March 26.—(U.P.)—An amazed midwest dug out today from a wilderness of snow left by a furious freak of nature — the worst March blizzard in its history.

The prairies of Illinois, Indiana, lower Michigan and Wisconsin were mantled with a white blanket 12 inches deep on the level and six feet or more where yesterday's howling gale had piled it in drifts.

Chicago was in the grip of snow havoc as extensive as the worst storms of winter entailed. More than 20,000 men toiled with shovels, snow plows and trucks to clear the jampering layer from streets, street car tracks and suburban and steam lines.

Four lives were claimed by the storm in the city and the toll of injured from two wrecks on the rapid transit elevated lines and scores of mishaps on streets and sidewalks was estimated at 30.

At least 20,000 loop workers were marooned in the heart of the city overnight and slept in hotels. Their plight was paralleled by that of scores of motorists from the city whose automobiles were stalled along country highways.

Lake Michigan, churned into a monster of destruction, hurled giant waves against the shore line doing damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars. Waves 15 feet high raced inward from the lake and sailings of most all craft were cancelled.

Only once before since weather bureau records have been kept has there been a March storm to compare with the one that lashed the city night before last and all day yesterday. That was on March 30 and 31, 1926. The snowfall for that 48 hours was 12.6 inches.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel estimated today that the average depth of snowfall was 12 inches, with the probability that enough more would fall in the dying ebb of the storm to break all records.

A gale of an average velocity of 30 miles an hour whirled the flakes into blizzard intensity and at times the wind howled along at 50 miles an hour, turning the atmosphere into a sea of snow as effective as a smoke screen in blinding vision.

St. Paul, March 26.—While a March snow storm lashed the territory to the east and south, Minnesota and the northwest, known as the home of blizzards, basked in moderate temperatures and balmy breezes today.

The official weather prediction, however, cast a shadow of gloom over the sunny northwest. It promised a drop in temperatures with a slight snowfall tonight with continued cold tomorrow.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 26.—The weather man's promise of cooler weather today failed to halt the general exodus of city residents to the beaches of southern California.

Thousands fled from the cities yesterday when temperatures rose to 87.2 degrees, to spend the day in the surf.

Those who were forced to remain in offices and homes in Los Angeles were somewhat relieved, however, when the mercury failed to reach Monday's uncomfortable mark of 89 degrees.

BANDITS ROB SANBORN BANK OF $4,000 TODAY

2 ROBBERS ARRIVE JUST AS THE FUNDS WERE BEING PLACED IN THE VAULT

BANDITS, YOUNG MEN WELL DRESSED; MOVED WITH PRECISION, ESCAPED IN COUPE

Sanborn, Minn., March 26.—(U.P.)—Arriving just as the funds were being bundled together and placed in the vault, two young bandits robbed the Farmers State Bank of $4,000 today.

S. G. Gleason, president of the bank, said if the bandits arrived two minutes later the money would have been safely locked up.

The bandits forced Gleason, W. D. Yaeger, cashier, and Dr. C. H. Boelke, a customer, to lie face downward on the floor while they picked up the money. Threatening several times to "shoot you down" if the three men moved, the bandits finished the robbery in less than 10 minutes.

They escaped from the village in a light coupe, in which they arrived a few minutes before the bank was robbed. L. J. Kise, sheriff of Redwood county, notified the state bureau of criminal apprehension and asked authorities of nearby towns to watch for the bandit automobile.

Gleason described the bandits as between 25 and 30 years old and well dressed. He said they were unmasked and moved about the bank with precision, apparently gained through former experience.

Most of the loot, Gleason said, was in currency and silver. Bank officials began a check-up which, it was believed, would reveal that between $4,000 and $5,000 was taken.

PRISON MUTINY QUELLED QUICKLY BY THE GUARDS

NATIONAL GUARD CALLED OUT AT JEFFERSON CITY

800 PRISONERS REFUSED TO LEAVE MESS HALL AFTER NOON MEAL

Jefferson City, Mo., March 26.—More than 800 prisoners refused to leave the mess hall of the prison here after finishing the noon meal today.

Prison officials believed the prisoners were planning to riot. National guardsmen were called out immediately to cope with the situation.

In addition, all extra guards were ordered to mount the wall and the capital city fire department was ordered to the scene.

The prison, now crowded with 4,000 white and negro inmates, almost doubling the number of men for which it was built, has caused state officials concern ever since the wave of prison riots swept the country last year.

Prison officials characterized the old battle, crowded in the center of Missouri's capital as presenting one of the most potentially dangerous situations in the country.

Initial word from the prison said no actual fighting had occurred but that authorities were preparing for possible "vicious disturbances." Of the 800 prisoners in the mess hall, 750 refused to leave the room and stood back sullenly.

The prison board was in session at the time and called upon Gov. Henry S. Caulfield immediately to issue an order for militia protection.

Says Drinking More Prevalent in Eastern Colleges, Universities

St. Louis, March 26.—(U.P.)—Drinking is more prevalent in eastern colleges and universities than any other part of the country, Dr. Francis W. Shephardson of Chicago, told the United Press in an exclusive interview.

Dr. Shephardson, one of the organizers and a past president of the Inter-Fraternity council, editor of Briand's "American College Fraternities," and dean of senior colleges at the University of Chicago for twenty-five years, is recognized as the leading authority on fraternities and fraternity conditions. He is national president of Beta Theta Pi.

"Eastern college men have always been heavier drinkers than college men in any other part of the country," Dr. Shephardson said. "They have more money and can better afford to buy liquor. They are used to having liquor in their homes. And they are subject to the fallacy that a gentleman must be a judge of good liquor."

According to Dr. Shephardson drinking in the colleges and universities is on the decline. He said that in his conferences with deans and presidents of educational institutions throughout the country they are almost unanimous in stating that they encounter very little drinking and that the drinking problem is a minor one.

SAYS RAILROADS ARE BACKBONE OF THE COUNTRY

Springfield, Ill., March 26.—(U.P.)—Railroads are the backbone of the country, W. H. Bremner, Minneapolis, Minn., president of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad, told members of the Springfield Transportation club last night.

"Easy transportation makes a nation great and strong," he said. "Railroads should not be considered as so many steel rails and ties, but as so much manhood serving a nation, transporting its products and its people."

Referring to the airplane, Bremner declared that the railroad always will be the chief means of transportation.

URGES BETTER RELATIONS BE ESTABLISHED SOON

FEDERAL FARM BOARD IN ADVANCE TO CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING ASSOCIATIONS

CO-OPS OF MINNESOTA, MONTANA AND DAKOTAS TO HOLD CONFERENCE

Minneapolis, Minn., March 26.—(U.P.)—The federal farm board today was reported to have requested co-operative marketing organizations of the northwest "to attempt to overcome confusion and friction and establish better relations with each other."

Representatives of leading co-operatives of Minnesota, Montana and the Dakotas announced they will hold a conference in Minneapolis April 4 to accomplish that purpose. Decision to hold the conference was reached at a meeting of co-operatives called by the Farmers' National Grain Corporation, a subsidiary of the farm board.

The co-operatives to be represented at the conference are the North Dakota-Montana Wheat Pool, Grand Forks; Northwest Grain Association, Minneapolis; Farmers' Union Terminal Association, St. Paul, and Equity Union Sales Company, Aberdeen, S. D. All of them are recognized by the farm board and the Farmers' National Grain Corporation.

C. E. Huff, chairman of the Grain Corporation Board of Managers suggested the conference and said the four larger marketing agencies had "found a basis for full agreement and joint action." He suggested that all co-operatives in the northwest send representatives to the meeting.

GEORGE SUNDAY, SON OF EVANGELIST, IS HELD IN JAIL

PICKED UP IN CHICAGO ON A CHARGE OF DISORDERLY CONDUCT

WIFE HAS FILED CHARGES, SUNDAY DECLARES THESE TO BE A FRAME-UP

Chicago, March 26.—(U.P.)—George Sunday, son of the evangelist, Billy Sunday, was held in jail here today on a charge of disorderly conduct pending word from Los Angeles. Sunday was picked up here last night.

He denied charges by police that he was drunk, declaring he suddenly recovered consciousness and woke up in jail with his money and watch missing. His face was bruised and Sunday said he believed he was slugged.

A telegram was received from Los Angeles police saying Sunday was wanted there on charges brought by his wife. Sunday declared the charges to be a frame-up. He said he was giving a party in Los Angeles and one of his wife's friends came in uninvited.

The woman stayed until all the other guests had left, he said, and suddenly his wife arrived with a number of witnesses. She then brought charges against him, he said.

Police said Sunday would be held until further word from Los Angeles police.

The plane was found overturned by a farmer. Later it was learned the three men went to the home of Dave Dozier, near Pogram station, to spend the night. None of the three was injured in the forced landing.

FRANCE SEEMS TO HOLD ITSELF ALOOF IN PARLEY

STIMSON SUGGESTS CONSULTATIVE PACT, WITH NO OBLIGATION TO GIVE AID

FRENCH GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS VIEW SUGGESTION WITH INDIFFERENCE

By RAYMOND CLAPPER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, March 26.—Possibility of obtaining a five-power naval agreement at London was still left remote today despite Secretary of State Stimson's statement offering to consider a consultative pact provided it involved no implied obligation to render military assistance.

Press dispatches from Paris indicated little importance was attached to the Stimson suggestion by the French government. Acting Secretary of State Cotton after a conference with President Hoover expressed the view that it was hardly likely that a consultative pact would bring about any reduction of tonnage proposed by the French.

Cotton took the view that Stimson's remarks, which were cable here for President Hoover's information, did not register any new or important point in conference developments. The official interpretation of the statement was that it represented merely a reiteration of American policy, which is that the United States will not join in any trade implying future military assistance in return for immediate reduction of the French naval program. Such an agreement, Cotton believes, would be provocative of international misunderstanding and would not be considered by the American delegation under any circumstances.

Cotton repeated no proposal had been made by any conference participant for an innocuous consultative pact of the type Stimson suggested the American delegation would consider with an open mind.

Considerable confusion has resulted from the Stimson statement, which followed closely upon information obtained here that a consultative pact would not bring about reduction of proposed programs by a single ton, and Cotton discussed the situation with the president with a view to clarifying it.

By WEBB MILLER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, March 26.—Hope of a five-power naval agreement was revived today, at least temporarily, with the official announcement that the United States is willing to enter into a consultative pact, "without pledging, either actually or by inference, the use of military or naval forces to protect France from aggression."

Whether such an agreement will satisfy France's demands for a security pact as the price of reducing her tonnage figures appeared to rest today upon the question of how much farther than this Great Britain is willing to go in the way of military guarantees.

If France is satisfied with an American pledge to consult with the other powers in the event of threatened war, one of the great obstacles to a five-power treaty curtailing naval armaments will have been removed.

The attitude of Great Britain, which may be asked to give the definite military guarantees the United States positively refuses to pledge, may determine the issue.

Whether parliament or the British admiralty will permit Great Britain to assume obligations, particularly regarding the Mediterranean, remained a question today in view of the government's heavy domestic financial program and its determination to economize on the nation's fighting forces.

Statement of the American position came shortly after midnight. After rumors and some press reports of a "change" in the United States attitude had aroused the speculations of the entire conference.

The statement expressed the fear that a consultative pact along the lines hitherto suggested might lead France to infer that a material obligation existed on the part of the United States to protect France with armed assistance.

If the United States entered such an agreement as the price for reduction of the French fleet, it was felt, a "misunderstanding" as to America's responsibilities and obligations might result.

It was therefore suggested that any pact should be worded so definitely that there would be no misunderstanding nor misinterpretation of its terms.

If the suggested agreement were approached from that standpoint, the statement concluded, the United States would "consider the matter with an open mind."

Lila, who had posed for Henri Marchand, an artist and husband of the dead woman, led Mrs. Bowen to believe that Mrs. Marchand was a witch who must be killed by March 9 or the entire Bowen family would die.

Lila waited outside the home and Mrs. Bowen entered. Mrs. Marchand turned on the radio, and the squaw asked her if she was a witch. Mrs. Marchand laughingly said she was.

The Indian woman leaped on her, brandishing the hammer. She struck her twice, and Mrs. Marchand fell toward the stairway, knocking over the radio. The white woman screamed and tried to grab the hammer, and then sank back unconscious. Mrs. Bowen took out the chloroform bottle, dosed some of the contents on a wad of paper and thrust the paper down Mrs. Marchand's throat. Still fearful lest "the witch" would live, Mrs. Bowen poured some chloroform out of the bottle into Mrs. Marchand's mouth.

Then she washed the blood from her hands and met Lila outside the house. They started for the Seneca reservation, 35 miles from Buffalo.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Bowen's account of the murder, court recessed for luncheon.

Amazed Midwest Digs Itself Out of Heavy Wilderness of Snow Left By Freak of Nature

WORST MARCH BLIZZARD IN AREA HISTORY

PRAIRIES OF 4 STATES MANTLED IN PLACES WITH A FOOT OF SNOW

6 FEET OR MORE IN DEPTH WHERE GALE PILED IT IN DRIFTS

Chicago, March 26.—(U.P.)—An amazed midwest dug out today from a wilderness of snow left by a furious freak of nature—the worst March blizzard in its history.

The prairies of Illinois, Indiana, lower Michigan and Wisconsin were mantled with a white blanket 12 inches deep on the level and six feet or more where yesterday's howling gale had piled it in drifts.

Chicago was in the grip of snow havoc as extensive as the worst storms of winter entailed. More than 20,000 men toiled with shovels, snow plows and trucks to clear the jamming layer from streets, street car tracks and suburban and steam lines.

Four lives were claimed by the storm in the city and the toll of injured from two wrecks on the rapid transit elevated lines and scores of mishaps on streets and sidewalks was estimated at 30.

At least 20,000 loop workers were marooned in the heart of the city overnight and slept in hotels. Their plight was paralleled by that of scores of motorists from the city whose automobiles were stalled along country highways.

Lake Michigan, churned into a monster of destruction, hurled giant waves against the shore line doing damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars. Waves 15 feet high raced inward from the lake and sailings of most all craft were cancelled.

Only once before since weather bureau records have been kept has there been a March storm to compare with the one that lashed the city night before last and all day yesterday. That was on March 30 and 31, 1926. The snowfall for that 48 hours was 12.6 inches.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel estimated today that the average depth of snowfall was 12 inches, with the probability that enough more would fall in the dying ebb of the storm to break all records.

A gale of an average velocity of 30 miles an hour whirled the flakes into blizzard intensity and at times the wind howled along at 50 miles an hour, turning the atmosphere into a sea of snow as effective as a smoke screen in blinding vision.

St. Paul, March 26.—While a March snow storm lashed the territory to the east and south, Minnesota and the northwest, known as the home of blizzards, basked in moderate temperatures and balmy breezes today.

The official weather prediction, however, cast a shadow of gloom over the sunny northwest. It promised a drop in temperatures with a slight

St. Paul, March 26.—(U.P.)—Bids were to be opened today by H. W. Austin, commissioner of purchases, for construction of a $60,000 nurses home at the state sanatorium at Walker, Minn.

The building would house 40 nurses. Bids also were to be opened for remodeling quarters in Minneapolis, for the 151st field artillery, Minnesota national guard.

BANDITS ROB SANBORN BANK OF $4,000 TODAY

2 ROBBERS ARRIVE JUST AS THE FUNDS WERE BEING PLACED IN THE VAULT

BANDITS, YOUNG MEN WELL DRESSED; MOVED WITH PRECISION, ESCAPED IN COUPE

Sanborn, Minn., March 26.—(U.P.)—Arriving just as the funds were being bundled together and placed in the vault, two young bandits robbed the Farmers State Bank of $4,000 today.

S. G. Gleason, president of the bank, said if the bandits arrived two minutes later the money would have been safely locked up.

The bandits forced Gleason, W. D. Yager, cashier, and Dr. C. H. Boelke, a customer, to lie face downward on the floor while they picked up the money. Threatening several times to "shoot you down" if the three men moved, the bandits finished the robbery in less than 10 minutes.

They escaped from the village in a light coupe, in which they arrived a few minutes before the bank was robbed. L. J. Kise, sheriff of Redwood county, notified the state bureau of criminal apprehension and asked authorities of nearby towns to watch for the bandit automobile.

Gleason described the bandits as between 25 and 30 years old and well dressed. He said they were unmarked and moved about the bank with precision, apparently gained through former experience.

Most of the loot, Gleason said, was in currency and silver. Bank officials began a check-up which, it was believed, would reveal that between $4,000 and $5,000 was taken.

snowfall tonight with continued cold tomorrow.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 26.—The weather man's promise of cooler weather today failed to halt the general exodus of city residents to the beaches of southern California.

Thousands fled from the cities yesterday when temperatures rose to 87.2 degrees, to spend the day in the surf.

Those who were forced to remain in offices and homes in Los Angeles were somewhat relieved, however, when the mercury failed to reach Monday's uncomfortable mark of 89 degrees.

PRISON MUTINY QUELLED QUICKLY BY THE GUARDS

NATIONAL GUARD CALLED OUT AT JEFFERSON CITY

800 PRISONERS REFUSED TO LEAVE MESS HALL AFTER NOON MEAL

Jefferson City, Mo., March 26.—More than 800 prisoners refused to leave the mess hall of the prison here after finishing the noon meal today.

Prison officials believed the prisoners were planning to riot.

National guardsmen were called out immediately to cope with the situation.

In addition, all extra guards were ordered to mount the wall and the capital city fire department was ordered to the scene.

The prison, now crowded with 4,000 white and negro inmates, almost doubling the number of men for which it was built, has caused state officials concern ever since the wave of prison riots swept the country last year.

Prison officials characterized the old battle, crowded in the center of Missouri's capital as presenting one of the most potentially dangerous situations in the country.

Initial word from the prison said no actual fighting had occurred but that authorities were preparing for possible "vicious disturbances." Of the 800 prisoners in the mess hall, 750 refused to leave the room and stood back sullenly.

The prison board was in session at the time and called upon Gov. Henry S. Caulfield immediately to issue an order for militia protection.

Says Drinking More Prevalent in Eastern Colleges, Universities

St. Louis, March 26.—(U.P.)—Drinking is more prevalent in eastern colleges and universities than any other part of the country, Dr. Francis W. Shephardson of Chicago, told the United Press in an exclusive interview.

Dr. Shephardson, one of the organizers and a past president of the International Fraternity council, editor of Brant's "American College Fraternities," and dean of senior colleges at the University of Chicago for twenty-five years, is recognized as the leading authority on fraternities and fraternity conditions. He is national president of Beta Theta Pi.

"Eastern college men have always been heavier drinkers than college men in any other part of the country," Dr. Shephardson said. "They have more money and can better afford to buy liquor. They are used to having liquor in their homes. And they are subject to the fallacy that a gentleman must be a judge of good liquor."

According to Dr. Shephardson drinking in the colleges and universities is on the decline. He said that in his conferences with deans and presidents of educational institutions throughout the country they are almost unanimous in stating that they encounter very little drinking and that the drinking problem is a minor one.

SAYS RAILROADS ARE BACKBONE OF THE COUNTRY

Springfield, Ill., March 26.—(U.P.)—Railroads are the backbone of the country, W. H. Bremner, Minneapolis, Minn., president of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad, told members of the Springfield Transportation club last night.

"Easy transportation makes a nation great and strong," he said. "Railroads should not be considered as so many steel rails and mahogany serving a nation, transporting its products and its people."

Referring to the airplane, Bremner declared that the railroad always will be the chief means of transportation.

URGES BETTER RELATIONS BE ESTABLISHED SOON

FEDERAL FARM BOARD IN ADVANCE TO CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING ASSOCIATIONS

CO-OPS OF MINNESOTA, MONTANA AND DAKOTAS TO HOLD CONFERENCE

Minneapolis, Minn., March 26.—(U.P.)—The federal farm board today was reported to have requested co-operative marketing organizations of the northwest "to attempt to overcome confusion and friction and establish better relations with each other."

Representatives of leading co-operatives of Minnesota, Montana and the Dakotas announced they will hold a conference in Minneapolis April 4 to accomplish that purpose. Decision to hold the conference was reached at a meeting of co-operatives called by the Farmers' National Grain Corporation, a subsidiary of the farm board.

The co-operatives to be represented at the conference are the North Dakota-Montana Wheat Pool, Grand Forks; Northwest Grain Association, Minneapolis; Farmers' Union Terminal Association, St. Paul, and Equity Union Sales Company, Aberdeen, S. D. All of them are recognized by the farm board and the Farmers' National Grain Corporation.

C. E. Huff, chairman of the Grain Corporation Board of Managers suggested the conference and said the four larger marketing agencies had "found a basis for full agreement and joint action." He suggested that all co-operatives in the northwest send representatives to the meeting.

GEORGE SUNDAY, SON OF EVANGELIST, IS HELD IN JAIL

PICKED UP IN CHICAGO ON A CHARGE OF DISORDERLY CONDUCT

WIFE HAS FILED CHARGES, SUNDAY DECLARES THESE TO BE A FRAME-UP

Chicago, March 26.—(U.P.)—George Sunday, son of the evangelist, Billy Sunday, was held in jail here today on a charge of disorderly conduct pending word from Los Angeles. Sunday was picked up here last night. He denied charges by police that he was drunk, declaring he suddenly recovered consciousness and woke up in jail with his money and watch missing. His face was bruised and Sunday said he believed he was slugged.

A telegram was received from Los Angeles police saying Sunday was wanted there on charges brought by his wife. Sunday declared the charges to be a frame-up. He said he was giving a party in Los Angeles and one of his wife's friends came in uninvited.

The woman stayed until all the other guests had left, he said, and suddenly his wife arrived with a number of witnesses. She then brought charges against him, he said.

Police said Sunday would be held until further word from Los Angeles police.

FRANCE SEEMS TO HOLD ITSELF ALOOF IN PARLEY

STIMSON SUGGESTS CONSULTATIVE PACT, WITH NO OBLIGATION TO GIVE AID

FRENCH GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS VIEW SUGGESTION WITH INDIFFERENCE

By RAYMOND CLAPPER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, March 26.—Possibility of obtaining a five-power naval agreement at London was still left remote today despite Secretary of State Stimson's statement offering to consider a consultative pact provided it involved no implied obligation to render military assistance.

Press dispatches from Paris indicated little importance was attached to the Stimson suggestion by the French government. Acting Secretary of State Cotton after a conference with President Hoover expressed the view that it was hardly likely that a consultative pact would bring about any reduction of tonnage proposed by the French.

Cotton took the view that Stimson's remarks, which were cabled here for President Hoover's information, did not register any new or important point in conference developments. The official interpretation of the statement was that it represented merely a reiteration of American policy, which is that the United States will not join in any trade implying future military assistance in return for immediate reduction of the French naval program. Such an agreement, Cotton believed, would be provocative of international misunderstanding and would not be considered by the American delegation under any circumstances.

Cotton repeated no proposal had been made by any conference participant for an innocuous consultative pact of the type Stimson suggested the American delegation would consider with an open mind.

Considerable confusion has resulted from the Stimson statement, which followed closely upon information obtained here that a consultative pact would not bring about reduction of proposed programs by a single ton, and Cotton discussed the situation with the president with a view to clarifying it.

By WEBB MILLER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, March 26.—Hope of a five-power naval agreement was revived today, at least temporarily, with the official announcement that the United States is willing to enter into a consultative pact "without pledging, either actually or by inference, the use of military or naval forces to protect France from aggression."

Whether such an agreement will satisfy France's demands for a security pact as the price of reducing her tonnage figures appeared to rest today upon the question of how much farther than this Great Britain is willing to go in the way of military guarantees.

If France is satisfied with an American pledge to consult with the other powers in the event of threatened war, one of the great obstacles to a five-power treaty curtailing naval armaments will have been removed.

The attitude of Great Britain, which may be asked to give the definite military guarantees the United States positively refuses to pledge, may determine the issue.

Whether parliament or the British admiralty will permit Great Britain to assume obligations, particularly regarding the Mediterranean, remained a question today in view of the government's heavy domestic financial program and its determination to economize on the nation's fighting forces.

Statement of the American position came shortly after midnight. After rumors and some press reports of a "change" in the United States attitude had aroused the speculations of the entire conference.

The statement expressed the fear that a consultative pact along the lines hitherto suggested might lead France to infer that a material obligation existed on the part of the United States to protect France with armed assistance.

If the United States entered such an agreement as the price for reduction of the French fleet, it was felt, a "misunderstanding" as to America's responsibilities and obligations might result.

It was therefore suggested that any pact should be worded so definitely take off for Madison as soon as repairs have been made on their plane, it is reported today.

The plane was found overturned by a farmer. Later it was learned the three men went to the home of Dave Dozier, near Pegram station, to spend the night. None of the three was injured in the forced landing.

PRIZE HUNTERS SEEK TRADE WEEK GIFTS

Brainerd Merchants Prepare for Week
End Rush to Conclude Event

MORE MERCHANTS ENTER

Winning Numbers Are Changed Daily
in Display Windows
of Stores

Brainerd merchants are prepared for the rush that is expected to conclude Spring Trade Week in Brainerd. Windows were prettily dressed in the downtown district and seasonal merchandise placed at sensational prices was on display.

Despite the unfavorable weather during the early part of the week a large number of shoppers have been visiting downtown Brainerd in the afternoon looking for prize winning numbers in the display windows.

Quite a few prizes have been taken but there are many more waiting in the windows for the holder of the right number to claim. Merchants are offering a different list of prizes each day and the lucky numbers in the windows are being changed each morning at 8 o'clock so that it is well worth any shopper's time to window shop in Brainerd each day for the large number of valuable prizes that are being given away at no cost whatever to the holders of the winning numbers.

In order to make the week a huge success the merchants are cooperating not only in the giving of prizes; they are each offering a number of special sale values and prices to the shoppers that make Brainerd a shopping center during Spring Trade Week.

Since the beginning of the week a number of Brainerd merchants have joined the ranks of those giving away prizes during Spring Trade Week. A partial list of those who have added the prize giving feature within the past 24 hours are: The Quality Bake Shop, S. Lundborg, The Olympia Confectionery and Cafe, The Home Bakery, thus swelling the list of those participating to well over 50 merchants.

Although the weather has not been exactly favorable for shopping the past few days people are urged to attend Brainerd's Spring Trade Week for the prizes and the special shopping values are offered despite the weather.

Due to the fact that many of the merchants have not kept a record of the prize winning numbers or a list of the persons winning the prizes anything that approaches a complete list of winners cannot be given.

Here are just a few of those that have won Spring Trade Week prizes to date: Mrs. Anton Holm, 702 South Tenth street; Frank Bacon, 702 8th Ave. N. E.; Mrs. Nels Gullberg, 619 South Tenth street; Mrs. P. G. Fallquist, 315 South Ninth street; Mrs. A. E. Olson, 714 South Tenth street; Mrs. George Stein; Mrs. Emil Hautala; Simon Framness, 524 Pennsylvania Ave.; Emil Englund, 615 South 7th street.

Mrs. A. T. Groves of Merrifield; Miss Evelyn Myers; Ben Thompson, 409 13th street; H. W. Elling, 301 Second Ave. N. E.; Miss Lucille Kampmann, 319 North Seventh street; Clayton Heas, 918 South Tenth street; Mrs. Frank Fuller, 301 North Tenth street; Mrs. Leo Skiba, 1006 Seventh Ave. N. E.; Mrs. Antonson, Clifford Welsh, Mrs. Mary Carlson.

A partial list of the lucky numbers on which prizes have been given are: 82, 4727, 1036, 146, 61, 398, 1175, 202, 129, 998, 4171, 10064.

EXTOLS WORK OF EFFIE DREXLER

American Legion Auxiliary Band
Credits Much of its Success to Director

The American Legion Auxiliary band, which gives its annual local concert in the new high school auditorium on the evening of Monday, March 31, expresses great pleasure in acknowledging its grateful appreciation of the splendid efforts of the director, Miss Effie Drexler. Miss Drexler has given unstintingly of her time, her energy, and her excellent taste in music, in order to present a concert which will be enjoyable. This is true of all activities she undertakes.

Miss Drexler has been interested in musical activities all her life. She is a graduate of Brainerd high school and of Valley City normal. It was while at Valley City she had her first experience in band work, playing cornet with the normal band. Since graduation she has taught in various cities, at times having entire charge of the music in the school system. She was director of music at Sandstone, Minn., and International Falls, and while at these places, conducted school music, glee clubs, orchestras, bands and operettas. While living on the Range, Miss Drexler played the violin with the Range Symphony Orchestra conducted by Luigi Lombardi.

Since returning to her home city, Brainerd, Miss Drexler has been actively engaged in musical interests and wholly successful in all undertakings. As director and pianist of the Presbyterian choir, as assistant, at various times, of the Swedish Glee club, as producer of school operettas, she has won gratitude and commendation. She has proven her superiority as a musician in gaining for Brainerd an enviable reputation through the achievements of the Choral club in district and state musical circles. Not only has this club established a reputation for Brainerd, but it has given boundless pleasure and profit to its members and audiences.

The American Legion Auxiliary band is in its third year of organization. It has fulfilled countless engagements, all successful, has attended two national Legion conventions, and has become almost professional out of the amateur class, all due to the acknowledged ability of Effie Drexler, its director.

NOTICE

There will be a meeting of the Evergreen Cemetery association on the First Tuesday in April, at the office of the Judge of Probate at the court house at 8 o'clock.

PRIZE HUNTERS SEEK TRADE WEEK GIFTS

Brainerd Merchants Prepare for Week
End Rush to Con-
clude Event

MORE MERCHANTS ENTER

Winning Numbers Are Changed Daily
in Display Windows
of Stores

Brainerd merchants are prepared for the rush that is expected to conclude Spring Trade Week in Brainerd. Windows were prettily dressed in the downtown district and seasonal merchandise placed at sensational prices was on display.

Despite the unfavorable weather during the early part of the week a large number of shoppers have been visiting downtown Brainerd in the afternoons looking for prize winning numbers in the display windows.

Quite a few prizes have been taken but there are many more waiting in the windows for the holder of the right number to claim. Merchants are offering a different list of prizes each day and the lucky numbers in the windows are being changed each morning at 8 o'clock so that it is well worth any shopper's time to window shop in Brainerd each day for the large number of valuable prizes that are being given away at no cost whatever to the holders of the winning numbers.

In order to make the week a huge success the merchants are cooperating not only in the giving of prizes; they are each offering a number of special sale values and prices to the shoppers that make Brainerd a shopping center during Spring Trade Week.

Since the beginning of the week a number of Brainerd merchants have joined the ranks of those giving away prizes during Spring Trade Week. A partial list of those who have added the prize giving feature within the past 24 hours are: The Quality Bake Shop, S. Lundborg, The Olympia Confectionery and Cafe, The Home Bakery, thus swelling the list of those participating to well over 50 merchants.

Although the weather has not been exactly favorable for shopping the past few days people are urged to attend Brainerd's Spring Trade Week for the prizes and the special shopping values are offered despite the weather.

Owing to the fact that many of the merchants have not kept a record of the prize winning numbers or a list of the persons winning the prizes anything that approaches a complete list of winners cannot be given.

Here are just a few of those that have won Spring Trade Week prizes to date: Mrs. Anton Holm, 702 South Tenth street; Frank Bacon, 702 8th Ave. N. E.; Mrs. Nels Gullberg, 619 South Tenth street; Mrs. P. G. Fallquist, 315 South Ninth street; Mrs. A. E. Olson, 714 South Tenth street; Mrs. George Stein; Mrs. Emil Hautala; Simon Framness, 524 Pennsylvania Ave.; Emil Englund, 615 South 7th street.

Mrs. A. T. Groves of Merrifield; Miss Evelyn Myers; Ben Thompson, 409 13th street; H. W. Elling, 301 Second Ave. N. E.; Miss Lucille Kampmann, 319 North Seventh street; Clayton Hess, 918 South Tenth street; Mrs. Frank Fuller, 301 North Tenth street; Mrs. Leo Skiba, 1006 Seventh Ave. N. E.; Mrs. Antonson, Clifford Welsh, Mrs. Mary Carlson.

A partial list of the lucky numbers on which prizes have been given are: 82, 4727, 1036, 146, 61, 398, 1175, 202, 129, 998, 4171, 10064.

Raising Lake Levels

CROW WING county is not the only one worried about lake levels, for we find Wadena folks with summer homes at Otter Tail lake calling a mass meeting in the court house at Fergus Falls on April 2 for the purpose of obtaining opinions on a proposal to raise the level of that lake 18 inches above the low water mark and hold the level there.

As reported in the Wadena Pioneer Journal three petitions have been in circulation for some time asking that the water level be raised and the county commissioners wish to have the matter thoroughly aired before taking action one way or another. One of these petitions is signed by 97 of the property owners on the lake. It is understood that a few farmers from Otter Tail lake are opposed to a raising of the water level.

During the past year or two the lake has receded considerably. Several years ago a dam was constructed at the southwest corner of the lake at the source of the river but it was never used. It is proposed that this dam now be used to keep the water at a higher level. It is claimed that the raising of the lake 18 inches would flood but very little land.

Otter Tail is the largest and one of the most beautiful lakes in that county and the petitioners feel that something should be done immediately to maintain a higher water level.

The County Agent

THE county farm agent has so thoroughly demonstrated his worth as a connection between the community and the national and state farm extension work and advancement that there are now 5,000 of these employed in the United States, says the Aitkin Independent Age. An agricultural community without a county agent and co-operative extension activities and boys and girls in 4-H club work is sadly behind the times not only in reputation but in actual productive results.

Why does the American farmer produce more every year with less labor and on fewer acres? The Federal Department of Agriculture answers:

He knows more about his soils and plants and animals.
He is in a better position to combat pests.
He knows how to apply his labor more efficiently.
He is using more fertilizer.
He is feeding his livestock better.
He selects and plants better seed, breeds and feeds better animals.

He is, in fact, a more efficient person than he was last year and the year before, and he seems likely to be more efficient every year from now on. Why? Because that's just the kind of farmers this country has.

Are You "Dad" or "The Old Man?"

How about that boy of yours, are you "Dad" to him, or just "the old man?"

We always feel like taking off our hat to the man who has raised a boy to manhood and who still enjoys the confidence and comradeship of the boy.

A few days ago a group of sixth grade students in another city were asked who they would like to be when they grew up. Some declared they wanted to be Lindbergh, others, Hoover, but of the whole class, but two said they wanted to be like their Dad.

There is nothing in the world finer to see than the comradeship between a father and a son. What a success is that father whose boy is ready to fight for his good name at the drop of a hat? To that boy "Dad" represents all that is good and just.

You and I have had great ambitions. We'd like to be rich and successful and lots of other things, but in case these are denied us, just give us the privilege of having the son always feel free to come to us with his troubles and call us "Dad" and we'll be satisfied.—Granite Falls Tribune.

Finding New Worlds

BARELY had the announcement been made that a new planet had been found by the observatory in Arizona, substantiating the data and belief of the late Dr. Percy Lowell, than we find an Italian astronomer putting forth claims to discovery of four new planets. Gradually the boundaries of the solar system are being pierced.

The first new planet which we shall term the Lowell, is said to take 300 years to revolve about the earth. Winter or summer each have a length of 75 years. So if we were doomed to inhabit a spot there we would much prefer to be born early in summer and thus be assured of 75 years of decent weather.

As the sun's rays come like pale moonlight, winter probably heralds a period of 300 or 400 degrees below zero.

As telescopes gain more distance and other advances are made in science, further planets may be discovered.

Collecting Delinquent Taxes

RED LAKE county has started proceedings to collect delinquent taxes upon properties which are paying rents, by making levies against the rents. This is a move in the right direction and will help to reduce the tax burden of those who are in the habit of paying their taxes when due. Recent legislatures have made this possible and it is expected that the next legislature will tighten up any weak spots, which are found.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

BRAINERD, because of its gymnasium and its many advantages, appears to be destined to great things in the high school basketball and other contests. There may be regional changes which will bring a regional basketball tournament to Brainerd.

AL CAPONE had his face on the title page of Time, a magazine. This was presumably in recognition of his doing time in Philadelphia.

THE man who is busy carrying on his own business always gets plenty of chances to do community work.

THE good deeds of a man live after him.

THE theatres at Staples have been consolidated.

New York, March 26.—Few persons who heard the NBC broadcast from the North German Lloyd liner Europa after she broke the Atlantic crossing record yesterday had any way of knowing that the same man responsible for that broadcast also provided the greatest newspaper story for sustained interest that ever "broke" in the United States.

Several years ago an intrepid Kentucky cave explorer—Floyd Collins—became wedged in a crevice and a boulder rocked over on one of his legs. For days he was imprisoned, finally succumbing. Throughout those days when frantic efforts to rescue him failed, a Louisville newspaper reporter because of his small stature was the only man to reach near enough to the imprisoned man to talk to him and to take him food.

This young man was William Burke Miller, who as days passed and he repeatedly risked his own life in an effort to free Collins, emerged the hero of the episode which attracted the attention of millions of persons.

Miller came to New York after his outstanding job of reporting the Floyd Collins story and worked for a newspaper. Then he went to the National Broadcasting company's public relations department.

Only last week a new department was created by NBC and Miller was placed in charge. Hereafter the man who told the Floyd Collins story will direct the "stunt" broadcasts for NBC.

The Europa program was Miller's initiation in his new job.

Raising Lake Levels

CROW WING county is not the only one worried about lake levels, for we find Wadena folks with summer homes at Otter Tail lake calling a mass meeting in the court house at Fergus Falls on April 2 for the purpose of obtaining opinions on a proposal to raise the level of that lake 18 inches above the low water mark and hold the level there.

As reported in the Wadena Pioneer Journal three petitions have been in circulation for some time asking that the water level be raised and the county commissioners wish to have the matter thoroughly aired before taking action one way or another. One of these petitions is signed by 97 of the property owners on the lake. It is understood that a few farmers from Otter Tail lake are opposed to a raising of the water level.

During the past year or two the lake has receded considerably. Several years ago a dam was constructed at the southwest corner of the lake at the source of the river but it was never used. It is proposed that this dam now be used to keep the water at a higher level. It is claimed that the raising of the lake 18 inches would flood but very little land.

Otter Tail is the largest and one of the most beautiful lakes in that county and the petitioners feel that something should be done immediately to maintain a higher water level.

The County Agent

THE county farm agent has so thoroughly demonstrated his worth as a connection between the community and the national and state farm extension work and advancement that there are now 5,000 of these employed in the United States, says the Aitkin Independent Age. An agricultural community without a county agent and co-operative extension activities and boys and girls in 4-H club work is sadly behind the times not only in reputation but in actual productive results.

Why does the American farmer produce more every year with less labor and on fewer acres? The Federal Department of Agriculture answers:

He knows more about his soils and plants and animals.
He is in a better position to combat pests.
He knows how to apply his labor more efficiently.
He is using more fertilizer.
He is feeding his livestock better.
He selects and plants better seed, breeds and feeds better animals.

He is, in fact, a more efficient person than he was last year and the year before, and he seems likely to be more efficient every year from now on. Why? Because that's just the kind of farmers this country has.

Are You "Dad" or "The Old Man?"

How about that boy of yours, are you "Dad" to him, or just "the old man?"

We always feel like taking off our hat to the man who has raised a boy to manhood and who still enjoys the confidence and comradeship of the boy.

A few days ago a group of sixth grade students in another city were asked who they would like to be when they grew up. Some declared they wanted to be Lindbergh, others, Hoover, but of the whole class, but two said they wanted to be like their Dad.

There is nothing in the world finer to see than the comradeship between a father and a son. What a success is that father whose boy is ready to fight for his good name at the drop of a hat? To that boy "Dad" represents all that is good and just.

You and I have had great ambitions. We'd like to be rich and successful and lots of other things, but in case these are denied us, just give us the privilege of having the son always feel free to come to us with his troubles and call us "Dad" and we'll be satisfied.—Granite Falls Tribune.

Finding New Worlds

BARELY had the announcement been made that a new planet had been found by the observatory in Arizona, substantiating the data and belief of the late Dr. Percy Lowell, than we find an Italian astronomer putting forth claims to discovery of four new planets. Gradually the boundaries of the solar system are being pierced.

The first new planet which we shall term the Lowell, is said to take 300 years to revolve about the earth. Winter or summer each have a length of 75 years. So if we were doomed to inhabit a spot there we would much prefer to be born early in summer and thus be assured of 75 years of decent weather.

As the sun's rays come like pale moonlight, winter probably heralds a period of 300 or 400 degrees below zero.

As telescopes gain more distance and other advances are made in science, further planets may be discovered.

Collecting Delinquent Taxes

RED LAKE county has started proceedings to collect delinquent taxes upon properties which are paying rents, by making levies against the rents. This is a move in the right direction and will help to reduce the tax burden of those who are in the habit of paying their taxes when due. Recent legislatures have made this possible and it is expected that the next legislature will tighten up any weak spots, which are found.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

BRAINERD, because of its gymnasium and its many advantages, appears to be destined to great things in the high school basketball and other contests. There may be regional changes which will bring a regional basketball tournament to Brainerd.

8 HIGH SCHOOL CAGE TEAMS TO BATTLE FOR SUPREMACY

TO CONTEST FOR STATE TITLE IN MINN. FIELD HOUSE

MOORHEAD, DEFENDING CHAMPIONS, ARE GIVEN GREAT SEND-OFF

CHISHOLM AND RED WING HOLD COLORFUL PEP DEMONSTRATIONS

By HILLIER KRIEGHEAUM (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Minneapolis, Minn., March 26.—Cheering and best wishes resounded in eight high schools today as pep meetings were held to send off the basketball teams which will battle in the University of Minnesota field house this week-end for the state title.

Moorehead, the defending champions, leave this afternoon with the shouts of their classmates sounding in their ears.

The entire school and a large number of town folk gathered at the station to cheer the boys on to what they confidently expect will be their third consecutive state crown.

Chisholm high school rooters, including the entire school body and most of the town's basketball followers, were to gather at the send-off this morning.

Red Wing held several enthusiastic pep sessions yesterday as sort of "warming up" for the final farewells tomorrow to the team. Special trains have been arranged to carry the throngs that plan to attend the tournament.

Wells planned its first and excited farewell to a high school basketball team to enter the state tournament today. The 187 students and 400 townsmen expected to follow their team to the final game; a number were expecting to come to the tournament.

Redwood Falls and Appleton also were to leave today for the state contest. Appleton's supporters are expected to come in a large delegation to the tournament; Redwood Falls' followers will be small in numbers but they promised to make up for it in noise.

Basketball fans of the Twin Cities looked on Columbia Heights and Mechanic Arts high of St. Paul as their own entries although many picked an outside team for the final winner.

While home town fans cheered their boys on to what they said was sure victory, others who were to be spectators at the tournament marveled at the scholarship records that some of the athletes had made.

Four players claim to have made all A records in their studies. They are Chester Rausch, Red Wing forward; Wells Wright, Appleton captain; Redwood Falls' two Elton brothers, Tom, 16, and John, 14, have made perfect A averages in their studies. Rausch has received a straight A grade during the past two years. He has been a star forward with the Red Wing team for the past three years. Chisholm's regular five claims the record of being listed in full on the school's scholarship honor rolls.

Just before rolling in the singles, Foss and his partner, Ben Dor, also of Parkersburg, totaled 1261 in the doubles which was good enough to tie E. Sloan and F. Cornwell of Muncie, Ind., for ninth place.

BABE RUTH IN OPINION ON FINAL RACE

BABE DOES NOT EXPECT PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS TO REPEAT

"GIVE YANKEES A LITTLE PITCHING AND THEY WILL OVERPOWER LEAGUE"

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 26.—(U.P.)—Babe Ruth believes that the New York Yankees and Chicago Cubs will meet in the 1936 world series. In naming the Yankees for first place in the American League, Ruth exceeded the optimism of Manager Shawkey who last week said the Yanks and Athletics had an even chance for the pennant.

"A great ball club repeats, and I don't think the Athletics are a great ball club—not with that infield," announced the Babe.

Except in the cases of the New York and Philadelphia clubs, Ruth adhered closely to the final standings of 1929 in his American League predictions for this year. In the National League he picked Cincinnati to advance from seventh to third place.

Here is how Ruth says the clubs will finish on September 28:

American League
New York—first.
Philadelphia—second.
Cleveland—third.
St. Louis—fourth.
Detroit—fifth.
Chicago—sixth.
Washington—seventh.
Boston—eighth.

National League
Chicago—first.
Pittsburgh—second.
Cincinnati—third.
New York—fourth.
St. Louis—fifth.
Philadelphia—sixth.
Brooklyn—seventh.
Boston—eighth.

"Give the Yankees a little pitching and they will overpower the league," said Ruth. "We have the best club in either league. Our pitching is bound to be much better."

New-Fashioned Cars with the old reliable name of GRAHAM

Complete Protection of Shatter-Proof Plate Glass in every model at every price

the greatest safety factor since four-wheel brakes

This announcement signals the appearance of a new line of motor cars, bearing alone, for the first time, the name of the three Graham brothers.

Deeply impressed by the necessity of providing motorists with a positive safeguard against the frequent occasion of accident and death, the Grahams and their dealers celebrate the advent of these cars by foregoing all profit on a complete protective equipment of shatter-proof safety plate glass.

The Graham brothers endeavored faithfully to fulfill their stewardship to the Graham-Paige properties, to Graham-Paige dealers and owners, by a progressive policy which constantly produced better cars.

Now, with the obligation of a product bearing only their own name, their chief ambition is to be worthy of the public confidence of the past and a greater measure of confidence in the future.

To that end—aided by the generosity of Graham distributors and dealers who voluntarily forego all profit on the operation—they offer two new Graham Sixes and two new Graham Eights, equipped with one of the most important safety factors known to present-day motoring.

The entire industry must, of necessity, provide the public in due time with this complete and imperative protection because it is a safeguard which they should not be denied.

See the new Graham cars, learn the deadly difference in the two types of glass, and observe how fully these new Graham cars live up to the Graham guarantee of very good cars at low prices.

The Six and the Eight engines are Graham-built + + + The standard-shift, four-speed transmissions are Graham-designed and Graham-proned + + + The bodies are now all Graham-built to the rigid Graham standards. Graham Sixes—$845 and up. Graham Eights—$1445 and up. Prices at Factory.

8 HIGH SCHOOL CAGE TEAMS TO BATTLE FOR SUPREMACY

YANKEES VS CHICAGO CUBS IN WORLD SERIES

TO CONTEST FOR STATE TITLE IN MINN. FIELD HOUSE

MOORHEAD, DEFENDING CHAMPIONS, ARE GIVEN GREAT SEND-OFF

CHISHOLM AND RED WING HOLD COLORFUL PEP DEMONSTRATIONS

By HILLIER KRIEGHBAUM
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Minneapolis, Minn., March 26.—Cheering and best wishes resounded in eight high schools today as pep meetings were held to send off the basketball teams which will battle in the University of Minnesota field house this week-end for the state title.

Moorhead, the defending champions, leave this afternoon with the shouts of their classmates sounding in their ears.

The entire school and a large number of town folk gathered at the station to cheer the boys on to what they confidently expect will be their third consecutive state crown.

Chisholm high school rooters, including the entire school body and most of the town's basketball followers, were to gather at the send-off this morning.

Red Wing held several enthusiastic pep sessions yesterday as sort of "warming up" for the final farewells tomorrow to the team. Special trains have been arranged to carry the teams that plan to attend the tournament.

Wells planned its first and excited farewell to a high school basketball team to enter the state tournament today. The 187 students and 400 townsmen expected to follow their team to the final game; a number were expecting to come to the tournament.

Redwood Falls and Appleton also were to leave today for the state contest. Appleton's supporters are expected to come in a large delegation to the tournament; Redwood Falls' followers will be small in numbers but they promised to make up for it in noise.

Basketball fans of the Twin Cities looked on Columbia Heights and Mechanic Arts high of St. Paul as their own entries although many picked an outside team for the final winner.

While home town fans cheered their boys on to what they said was sure victory, others who were to be spectators at the tournament marveled at the scholarship records that some of the athletes had made.

Four players claim to have made all A records in their studies. They are Chester Raasch, Red Wing forward; Wells Wright, Appleton captain; Redwood Falls' two Flinn brothers, Tom, 16, and John, 14, have made perfect A averages in their studies. Raasch has received a straight A grade during the past two years. He has been a star forward with the Red Wing team for the past three years.

Chisholm's regular five claims the record of being listed in full on the school's scholarship honor rolls.

BABE RUTH IN OPINION ON FINAL RACE

BABE DOES NOT EXPECT PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS TO REPEAT

"GIVE YANKEES A LITTLE PITCHING AND THEY WILL OVERPOWER LEAGUE"

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 26.—(U.P.)—Babe Ruth believes that the New York Yankees and Chicago Cubs will meet in the 1930 world series. In naming the Yankees for first place in the American League, Ruth exceeded the optimism of Manager Shawkey who last week said the Yanks and Athletics had an even chance for the pennant.

"A great ball club repeats, and I don't think the Athletics are a great ball club—not with that infield," announced the Babe.

Except in the cases of the New York and Philadelphia clubs, Ruth adhered closely to the final standings of 1929 in his American League predictions for this year. In the National League he picked Cincinnati to advance from seventh to third place. Here is how Ruth says the clubs will finish on September 28:

American League
New York—first.
Philadelphia—second.
Cleveland—third.
St. Louis—fourth.
Detroit—fifth.
Chicago—sixth.
Washington—seventh.
Boston—eighth.
National League
Chicago—first.
Pittsburgh—second.
Cincinnati—third.
New York—fourth.
St. Louis—fifth.
Philadelphia—sixth.
Brooklyn—seventh.
Boston—eighth.

"Give the Yankees a little pitching and they will overpower the league," said Ruth. "We have the best club in either league. Our pitching is bound to be much better."

WOMEN EMPLOY PRESENTS PROBLEM

Report on Country Wide Situation Presented by Mrs. C. B. Rowley

TARIFF DISCUSSED

Miss Elizabeth Walsh Advocates Tariff Put Intelligently Into Politics

"Thousands of young women working long tedious hours with scarcely a living wage present a problem to our civilization that one, particularly a civic and social welfare organization, can fail to overlook, a problem that society through careful investigation and wise legislation must solve," Mrs. C. B. Rowley declared in presenting a report at a well attended meeting of the League of Women Voters at the home of Mrs. Rose Parker Tuesday afternoon.

The report was a continuance of the discussion of the society on more pertinent points of living costs.

Continuing in her report Mrs. Rowley said:

"One in every five wage earners today is a woman. An army of more than 8,500,000 women has made its way into all but 35 of 572 occupations listed by the United States census. Women's earnings are still at a markedly lower level than those of the men with whom, at the same tasks, they labor. The low rate of payment for their work continues to be their most serious problem.

"The first law regulating hours of employment for women in Minnesota was passed in 1858. At present there are four laws relating to hours during which women may be employed. Together they have resulted in confusion, uncertainty and unfairness.

"The Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor recommends that the wages be based on occupation and not on sex or race, the minimum to cover cost of healthful and decent living and to allow for dependents."

Miss Elizabeth Walsh in her remarks on "The Tariff and the Consumer" said: "We are all consumers. That is to say, we all eat food, wear clothes, live in houses, and in various other ways consume goods. We should all be keenly interested in the tariff for it has a decided effect on the price of goods we buy and it is supposed to have an effect upon the money income we receive. One of the most obvious effects of any import duty is to raise the price which the consumer must pay for the articles on which the duty is levied. Take for example the sugar industry in the United States. There are several regions in this country where sugar cane and sugar beets can be grown but the costs of production are higher than in certain foreign countries, such as Cuba. To protect the American industry, Congress levied a duty on all sugar imported into the country. The net burden on the consumer caused by this one duty has been estimated at almost one hundred million dollars yearly."

After giving a brief summary of the tariff from the first, a revenue tariff passed during Washington's administration, through the high protective tariff since the Civil War, Miss Walsh read an address by Lynn Ramsay Edminister on "Can the Tariff be Made Scientific."

Discussing it Miss Walsh was quoted: "Mr. Edminister apparently thinks not for he says that the tariff is in politics to stay. The real problem is to see that the tariff is put intelligently into politics."

The reports on "Living Costs" will be concluded next Tuesday, April 1, when the League will meet at the home of Mrs. Dean White. Mrs. Per Larson and Mrs. Ben S. Armstrong will participate in the program.

WOMEN EMPLOY PRESENTS PROBLEM

Report on Country Wide Situation Presented by Mrs. C. B. Rowley

TARIFF DISCUSSED

Miss Elizabeth Walsh Advocates Tariff Put Intelligently Into Politics

"Thousands of young women working long tedious hours with scarcely a living wage present a problem to our civilization that one one, particularly a civic and social welfare organization, can fail to overlook, a problem that society through careful investigation and wise legislation must solve," Mrs. C. B. Rowley declared in presenting a report at a well attended meeting of the League of Women Voters at the home of Mrs. Rose Parker Tuesday afternoon.

The report was a continuance of the discussion of the society on more pertinent points of living costs.

Continuing in her report Mrs. Rowley said:

"One in every five wage earners today is a woman. An army of more than 8,500,000 women has made its way into all but 35 of 572 occupations listed by the United States census. Women's earnings are still at a markedly lower level than those of the men with whom, at the same tasks, they labor. The low rate of payment for their work continues to be their most serious problem."

"The first law regulating hours of employment for women in Minnesota was passed in 1888. At present there are four laws relating to hours during which women may be employed. Together they have resulted in confusion, uncertainty and unfairness."

"The Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor recommends that the wages be based on occupation and not on sex or race, the minimum to cover cost of healthful and decent living and to allow for dependents."

Miss Elizabeth Walsh in her remarks on "The Tariff and the Consumer" said: "We are all consumers. That is to say, we all eat food, wear clothes, live in houses, and in various other ways consume goods. We should all be keenly interested in the tariff for it has a decided effect on the price of goods we buy and it is supposed to have an effect upon the money income we receive. One of the most obvious effects of any import duty is to raise the price which the consumer must pay for the articles on which the duty is levied. Take for example the sugar industry in the United States. There are several regions in this country where sugar cane and sugar beets can be grown but the costs of production are higher than in certain foreign countries, such as Cuba. To protect the American industry, Congress levied a duty on all sugar imported into the country. The net burden on the consumer caused by this one duty has been estimated at almost one hundred million dollars yearly."

After giving a brief summary of the tariff from the first, a revenue tariff passed during Washington's administration, through the high protective tariff since the Civil War, Miss Walsh read an address by Lynn Ramsay, Edminister on "Can the Tariff be Made Scientific."

Discussing it Miss Walsh was quoted: "Mr. Edminister apparently thinks not for he says that the tariff is in politics to stay. The real problem is to see that the tariff is put intelligently into politics."

The reports on "Living Costs" will be concluded next Tuesday, April 1, when the League will meet at the home of Mrs. Dean White. Mrs. Per Larson and Mrs. Ben S. Armstrong will participate in the program.

Representatives of the Brainerd, Little Falls, St. Cloud, Long Prairie and Parkers Prairie Baptist churches met in the First Baptist church of Brainerd Monday afternoon and evening, in a conference on evangelism, to consider how they could most fittingly observe the nineteenth hundred anniversary of Pentecost.

George Tracy of Brainerd, the moderator of the Northwestern Baptist association presided at the conference sessions, with Mrs. Grondin leading the afternoon devotional service and Walter Minske leading the evening praise service. The special music for the conference was furnished by Mrs. P. G. Fahlquist, Earl Peterson and Walter Minske.

Stirring messages on the different phases of the evangelistic life of the church were given by Rev. Walter J. Smith of Brainerd, Rev. A. F. Malmborg of St. Cloud, Rev. Arthur Nyborg of Long Prairie and Rev. Leo Sandgren of Parkers Prairie, with the Rev. Edgar A. Vallant of Brainerd leading the afternoon discussion hour and bringing the closing message of the conference on the subject, "Pentecost to Pentecost."

A very enjoyable conference supper was served to the delegates and friends at 6:30 o'clock, by the ladies of the First Baptist church.

The conference Monday is one of six being conducted in Minnesota in the interest of a proper Pentecostal observance, under the auspices of the Department of Evangelism of the Minnesota Baptist convention, of which department the Rev. Edgar A. Vallant is director.

"MASTER OF MONEY"

BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER XL

SHE WATCHED while the motley crowd loaded themselves into the lorries and heard Alan barking orders at the junior foreman. There was nothing for her to do but just watch. Even the need for her drudgery in the office had passed. He had now no need of her at all.

They stood together while the lorries passed them one by one. At the side of the yard an ordinary touring car containing Alan's baggage.

"I'll give them half an hour's start," he said. "I've just time for a snack, if you feel like it?"

They went to an adjoining cafe and Alan gave her a monologue about the convoys. He seemed wholly unconscious of the fact that she was parting.

"By jove!" he exclaimed suddenly. "I forgot to write to Roger about those shares. I'll just dash into the office before I go and do it."

She went to the depot and waited for him.

"All correct," he said when he joined her. "I've posted it. Now I'd better trundle along and see what sort of trouble that convoy has got into." He nodded to the driver, who started up the engine.

"Well—good-bye, Shirley. Thanks awfully for all you've done at the office—it saved me no end of trouble but I'm afraid you overdid it a bit. Look after yourself. I shall probably have to come down in a month or so and if you're still here we can meet."

"Good-bye, Alan—good luck!" she said in answer, and turned away as the car started.

She went back to the house in Kalamaria and knew that it had become a house of desolation. She was tired, aching in every limb.

She went upstairs to her room and on the landing met the housekeeper, who asked if she wanted anything.

Shirley tried to answer her, but no words came. She waved the woman away, then slamming her door and locking it, flung herself on the bed and, for the first time in her adult life burst into a passion of weeping.

Shirley could find no reason for staying on in the country, that her conscience could accept. In the weeks that followed, the loneliest period of her life, she made for herself one excuse after another.

There was the excuse that she wanted to see whether Alan could carry through his plan of making the railway—and there was the excuse that he might fall ill at any time and need her. Precisely how he would need her in a city that knew no lack of doctors or nurses, she did not make clear to herself.

Two days after he had gone, she wrote him a bright, chatty letter, then found there was no means of posting it unless she went to the depot and arranged for one of the drivers of the lorries to take it. She put off doing this for a couple of days, then, having done it, she took a fortnight for his reply. And when it came it was not, strictly, a reply at all.

"Thanks for your note," ran a pencilled scrawl. "We've made a rather slow start—they're a difficult crowd to handle—but I put them on piece-work pay at the end of the week and it's working wonderfully. It is getting very hot and we shall soon have to knock off midday work. Hope you are flourishing. A"

It was that unsatisfying note which made her suspect that she was not staying on in the country merely to follow the fortunes of Macedonian Developments. She could have waited indefinitely for news about how the gang was working. There might be news of another kind that she could not wait for—but Shirley was not used to analyzing her own emotions. The loneliness was not literal—and that made it the harder to endure. There were plenty of invitations from the bureaucracy of the city, but such society had lost its savor. Maurois was an oasis in a desert of formal conversation.

By demanding her attention he brought her a certain temporary relief from her melancholy. He kept her self-respect alive by his perpetual reminder of her womanhood.

She met him almost daily but never by invitation on either side. She would meet him at the houses of the officials—and there were chance meetings when she was shopping or taking such limited exercise as the town permitted. True, there was a certain systematic regularity about the chance meetings, but she failed to notice this. His manner in these days suggested a scrupulous consciousness of Alan's absence. About him there was no hint of the pursuer. He was almost rigidly conventional but at the same time broad and companionable.

He told her a good deal about mosquitoes and malaria—told her that it was time to buy mosquito nets, helped her choose them at an Orosi Mpak's and gave her much sensible advice as to the fixing of them. She began to forget her suspicions of him and she was particularly anxious to show her gratitude for the help he had undoubtedly given.

By the middle of April she had written four times to Alan and received only one brief note like the first from him. She decided to write no more and wondered anxiously if he were all right, for the summer was now beginning. Already in the city it was as hot as a New York August.

One evening, when she had just finished dining in the garden to escape from the heat of the house, Stavros was announced.

"Ask Monsieur Stavros to come into the garden and bring coffee for two," she ordered the housekeeper—cum-parlormaid.

But Stavros would not take coffee. He was, it appeared, too agitated.

"Madame, I am agitated!" he greeted her. "It is my especial misery that I lack the power to break bad news in a fitting manner."

Shirley quickened. "Has anything happened to—my husband?" she demanded.

"To Mr. Brenaway? Indeed, no, to the best of my information," said Stavros.

For a moment Shirley closed her eyes. The Commissioner was babbling but she was not listening. There could be no other bad news. Nevertheless there was bad news.

"...and, of course, you must understand that there was opposition at Athens from the beginning which I set myself to overcome. As you are aware, I was successful, but honesty compels me to admit that I was assisted by our good friend, Monsieur Maurois, whose standing with the Government it would be impossible to exaggerate."

"I have written—how many dispatches in the last fortnight?—it must be a dozen—to point out the urgency, for the safety of Monsieur Brenaway and his workers, that the troops should remain. But the Government will not admit the existence of the comitadjis. They laugh at my plea of urgent necessity and they are forcing me to the troops in which I must recall the troops."

"This is terrible, Monsieur Stavros!" said Shirley in alarm. "It will mean that the work will have to be stopped."

"It is even worse than that, Madame, because I have made representations to Monsieur Brenaway also and he refuses to leave the hinterland. He is a man of courage and immense difficulty, your husband. I am told that he received my emissary with a certain scorn and my emissary reports that he has intimidated the officer in command of the troops."

"I don't think Mr. Brenaway would ever abandon work he had once started!" said Shirley wretchedly.

"That is precisely what I have feared—and that is why I have come to you, Madame," said Stavros. "When the military have been withdrawn and the comitadjis arrive, he will treat them, I do not doubt, as he has treated my emissary. How should an American understand the comitadjis? And, believe me, Madame, the comitadjis will not understand an American."

For a time Shirley was silent. "Monsieur Stavros, I feel sure that you want to help me. Can we do nothing?"

"There is a stone that my diffidence has restrained me from turning," said Stavros. "I refer to Monsieur Maurois. If he would join me in representing to the Government that the danger is real and that it would make a bad impression upon the American Government if an American should be killed by our comitadjis—it would be a simple matter. But I hesitate to approach Monsieur Maurois lest my friendship for Madame and her husband—there came the inevitable bow—" should seem to play too large a part in the consideration of my duty."

"Then I will see Monsieur Maurois myself," she said quickly. "If it is really only a matter of getting him to confirm your statement—he has been so kind already that—"

"Madame has voiced my inmost thoughts," said Stavros. He rose to go, then added: "Did I mention that it is a matter of the utmost urgency? I shall be compelled to dispatch the order for withdrawal at midnight—unless in the meantime Monsieur Maurois can assure me of his backing."

"I will go at once," said Shirley. "But I haven't got the car here."

"My car is at the door. It would be an honor if Madame would accept the loan of it."

Shirley protested but allowed herself to be overruled.

Stavros had put the case very clearly to her—he had put it to her that unless Maurois' help were obtained at once, Alan would in all probability be killed by the comitadjis. In her brain was no other thought than that of getting to Monsieur Maurois as quickly as possible.

"Monsieur Maurois is a bit old-fashioned," she told herself. "I mustn't strike a jarring note by turning up in a jumper."

She hurried upstairs and changed into an informal evening frock. Twenty minutes later she was being shown into Maurois' drawing-room.

"You confirm my belief in telepathy," said Maurois, coming towards her. "For the last hour I have been trying to read but my thoughts were concentrated upon you. And now you have come."

He had never spoken to her in quite that strain before and Shirley inwardly sprang on guard.

"How charmingly you excuse an interruption, Monsieur Maurois!"

"My servants should have taken your cloak," said Maurois. "Permit me!"

"Oh, but I can stay only a very few minutes," protested Shirley. "Then, for those few minutes, at least give me the illusion that you will stay longer," said Maurois. His hands were on her cloak. Realizing this, Shirley let him take it.

"MASTER of MONEY"

BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER XL

SHE WATCHED while the motley crowd loaded themselves into the lorries and heard Alan barking orders at the junior foreman. There was nothing for her to do but just watch. Even the need for her drudgery in the office had passed. He had now no need of her at all.

They stood together while the lorries passed them one by one. At the side of the yard an ordinary touring car containing Alan's baggage.

"I'll give them half an hour's start," he said. "I've just time for a snack, if you feel like it?" They went to an adjoining cafe and Alan gave her a monologue about the convoys. He seemed wholly unconscious of the fact that she was waiting.

"By jove!" he exclaimed suddenly. "I forgot to write to Roger about those shares. I'll just dash into the office before I go and do it."

She went to the depot and waited for him.

"All correct," he said when he joined her. "I've posted it. Now I'd better trundle along and see what sort of trouble that convoy has got into." He nodded to the driver, who started up the engine.

"Well, good-bye, Shirley. Thanks awfully for all you've done at the office—it saved me no end of trouble but I'm afraid you overdid it a bit. Look after yourself. I shall probably have to come down in a month or so and if you're still here we can meet."

"Good-bye, Alan—good luck!" she said in answer, and turned away as the car started.

She went back to the house in Kalamaria and knew that it had become a house of desolation. She was tired, aching in every limb.

She went upstairs to her room and on the landing met the housekeeper, who asked if she wanted anything.

Shirley tried to answer her, but no words came. She waved the woman away, then, slamming her door and locking it, flung herself on the bed and for the first time in her adult life burst into a passion of weeping.

Shirley could find no reason for staying on in the country, that her conscience could accept. In the weeks that followed, the loneliest period of her life, she made for herself one excuse after another.

There was the excuse that she wanted to see whether Alan could carry through his plan of making the railway—and there was the excuse that he might fall ill at any time and need her. Precisely how he would need her in a city that knew no lack of doctors or nurses, she did not make clear to herself.

Two days after he had gone, she wrote him a bright, chatty letter, then found there was no means of posting it unless she went to the depot and arranged for one of the drivers of the lorries to take it.

She put off doing this for a couple of days, then, having done it, waited a fortnight for his reply. And when it came it was not, strictly, a reply at all.

"Thanks for your note," ran a pencilled scrawl. "We've made a rather slow start—they're a difficult crowd to handle—but I put them on piece-work pay at the end of the week and it's working wonderfully. It is getting very hot and we shall soon have to knock off midday work. Hope you are flourishing. A"

It was that unsatisfying note which made her suspect that she was not staying on in the country merely to follow the fortunes of Macedonian Developments. She could have waited indefinitely for news about how the gang was working, how they might be news of another kind that she could not wait for—but Shirley was not used to analyzing her own emotions.

The loneliness was not literal—and that made it the harder to endure. There were plenty of invitations from the bureaucracy of the city, but such society had lost its savor. Maurois was an oasis in a desert of formal conversation. By demanding her attention he brought her a certain temporary relief from her melancholy. He kept her self-respect alive by his perpetual reminder of her womanhood.

She met him almost daily but never by invitation on either side. She would meet him at the houses of the officials—and there were chance meetings when she was shopping or taking such limited exercise as the town permitted. True, there was a certain systematic regularity about the chance meetings, but she failed to notice this.

His manner in these days suggested a scrupulous consciousness of Alan's absence. About him there was no hint of the pursuer. He was almost rigidly conventional but at the same time broad and companionable.

He told her a good deal about mosquitoes and malaria—told her that it was time to buy mosquito nets, helped her choose them at an Orosi shop and gave her much sensible advice as to the fixing of them. She began to forget her suspicions of him and she was particularly anxious to show her gratitude for the help he had undoubtedly given.

By the middle of April she had written four times to Alan and received only one brief note like the first from him. She decided to write no more and wondered anxiously if he were all right, for the summer was now beginning. Already in the city it was as hot as a New York August.

One evening, when she had just finished dining in the garden to escape from the heat of the house, Stavros was announced.

"Ask Monsieur Stavros to come into the garden—and bring coffee for two," she ordered the housekeeper, who performed.

But Stavros would not take coffee. He was, it appeared, too agitated.

"Madame, I am agitated!" he greeted her. "It is my special misery that I lack the power to break bad news in a fitting manner."

Shirley quivered. "Has anything happened to—my husband?" she demanded.

"To Mr. Brennaway? Indeed, no, to the best of my information," said Stavros.

For a moment Shirley closed her eyes. The Commissioner was babbling but she was not listening. There could be no other bad news. Nevertheless there was bad news.

and, of course, you must understand that there was opposition at Athens from the beginning which I set myself to overcome. As you are aware, I was successful, but honesty compels me to admit that I was assisted by our good friend, Monsieur Maurois, whose standing with the Government it would be impossible to exaggerate.

"I have written—how many dispatches in the last fortnight? It must be a dozen—to point out the urgency for the safety of Monsieur Brennaway and his workers, that the troops should remain. But the Government will not admit the existence of the comitadjis. They laugh at my plea of urgent necessity and they are forcing me to a position in which I must recall the troops."

"This is terrible, Monsieur Stavros!" said Shirley in alarm. "It will mean that the work will have to be stopped."

"It is even worse than that, Madame, because I have made representations to Monsieur Brennaway also and he refuses to leave the hinterland. He is a man of courage and immense difficulty, your husband. I am told that he received my emissary with a certain scorn and my emissary reports that he has intimidated the officer in command of the troops."

"I don't think Mr. Brennaway would ever abandon work he had once started!" said Shirley wretchedly.

"That is precisely what I have feared—and that is why I have come to you, Madame," said Stavros. "When the military have been withdrawn and the comitadjis arrive, he will treat them, I do not doubt, as he has treated my emissary. How should an American understand the comitadjis? And believe me, Madame, the comitadjis will not understand an American."

For a time Shirley was silent. "Monsieur Stavros, I feel sure that you want to help me. Can we do nothing?"

"There is a stone that my diffidence has restrained me from saying," said Stavros. "I refer to Monsieur Maurois. If he would join me in representing to the Government that the danger is real and that it would make a bad impression upon the American Government if an American should be killed by our comitadjis—it would be a simple matter. But I hesitate to approach Monsieur Maurois lest my friendship for Madame and her husband—there came the inevitable bow—" should seem to play too large a part in the consideration of my duty."

"Then I will see Monsieur Maurois myself," she said quickly. "If it is really only a matter of getting him to confirm your statement—he has been so kind already that—"

"Madame has voiced my inmost thoughts," said Stavros. He rose to go, then added: "Did I mention that it is a matter of the utmost urgency? I shall be compelled to dispatch the order for withdrawal at midnight—unless in the meantime Monsieur Maurois can assure me of his backing."

"I will go at once," said Shirley. "But I haven't got the car here."

"My car is at the door. It would be an honor if Madame would accept the loan of it."

Shirley protested but allowed herself to be overruled.

Stavros had put the case very clearly to her—he had put it to her that unless Maurois' help were obtained at once, Alan would in all probability be killed by the comitadjis. In her brain was no other thought than that of getting to Monsieur Maurois as quickly as possible.

"Monsieur Maurois is a bit old-fashioned," she told herself. "I mustn't strike a jarring note by turning up in a jumper."

She hurried upstairs and changed into an informal evening frock. Twenty minutes later she was being shown into Maurois' drawing-room.

"You confirm my belief in telepathy," said Maurois, coming towards her. "For the last hour I have been trying to read but my thoughts were concentrated upon you. And now you have come."

He had never spoken to her in quite that strain before and Shirley inwardly sprang on guard.

"How charmingly you excuse an interruption, Monsieur Maurois!"

"My servants should have taken your cloak," said Maurois. "Permit me."

"Oh, but I can stay only a very few minutes," protested Shirley.

"Then, for those few minutes, at least give me the illusion that you will stay longer," said Maurois. His hands were on her cloak. Realizing this, Shirley let him take it.
